Eyedrops for presbyopia are showing promising results in clinical phases

There are a few eyedrops that are presently under investigation for management of presbyopia. A prodrug EVO6 comprises of lipoic acid choline ester 1.5 % is designed to restore the flexibility of the crystallin lens. Another presbyopia therapies is known as Liquid Vision, which is a combine of aceclidine(miotic) and tropiciamde(cycloplegic) to create a temporary “super pinhole” effect with moderate accommodation for about five hours. FOV Tears is a binocular presbyopia-correcting drop that is available in Columbia. It is a combination of a parasympathetic alpha agonists 1 and 2, an anti-colinesterase and an NSAID creating a mild and dynamic miosis. Many more eyedrops are in the pipeline.... read more about them. Click here.

Tear is NOT water!
